

Learning Styles

Everyone learns differently, for example blind people need auditory learning while others may not. I don't think learning styles really affect how we learn in any negative way; I mean learning styles are there and available for people who need them! I personally think learning styles are super helpful and definitely something all schools, workplaces, etc... need. It's accessible for individuals with disabilities and life needs to be more accessible! It helps millions of people.